Topic: One hundred years ago, in May 1921, the British Parliament passed an act which partitioned Ireland into two separate regions, a harbinger of decades of political, cultural and social turmoil.

What are the causes and outcomes of this decision by Great Britain? How does it continue to inform the lives of Irish people at home and abroad today? Consider also, the waves of partition and separation that have occurred throughout the globe over the last century and their outcomes.
